Renaissance Firearms Range Decibel Study

Because of the lack of comparison data for ICF ranges we conducted ICF sound transmission testing in a building constructed similarly to the proposed Renaissance Range building. Below are the results of that test. Please reach out to us if you have any questions.

In this test the ICF wall consisted of (from outside to inside) 2 5/8" of rigid foam; 8" of reinforced concrete, 2 5/8" of rigid foam; and 5/8" gypsum wall board. The concrete deck consisted of (from bottom to top) steel bar joists; corrugated steel deck; 4" reinforced concrete slab integrally tied into the ICF walls. There were no windows present in the building envelope.

I fired five different weapons inside this building envelope to test the sound transmission of the ICF block and concrete deck. I started with a semiautomatic handgun in 9mm Luger and worked up to a bolt action rifle in 7mm Rem Mag. I placed the decibel meter outside directly adjacent to the building. The ambient traffic noise throughout the test ranged from 48-60 dBA. I fired two rounds from each firearm and charted the higher decibel number from each weapon.

The chart below summarizes the decibel peak for each firearm tested.

Ruger Sr9-C in 9mm - 53dBA

Ruger P90 in .45 ACP - 60.2dBA

Stoeger M2000 in 12 gauge - 65.7dBA

PSA AR-15 in 5.56 - 66.7dBA

Ruger M77 in 7mm rem mag. 81dBA

Below are the decibel levels of some common household items for comparison.

Refrigerator - 50 dBA

Electric toothbrush - 60 dBA

Washing machine - 70 dBA

Alarm clock - 80 dBA

I also tested the decibel level of the .45 ACP at varying distances from the building. At seven yards it was 57.7 dBA; at fifteen yards it was 53.4 dBA; and at 20 yards it was indiscernible from the traffic noise.
